Course Description

CRW 1301 is a course that emphasizes reading, writing, and criticizing poetry. This seminar/workshop operates under the assumption that one must be a skilled, critical reader of poetry in order to become a better writer of it. Our discussions will employ the types of vocabulary and methods specific to poetry. In the second half of the course, in addition to studying published poems, you'll be writing original poetry yourself and workshopping the poems of your peers.

Assignment Descriptions

Poems (8 x 50 points each = 400 total points):

You will write a total of eight poems. The first two will only be read by the instructor (me). Starting with Poem 3, the poems will be workshopped in class.

Requirements:

1. To receive credit, poems must:
 - a. be single-spaced with 1" margins
 - b. be left-justified (not center- or right-justified, although indentation and other variations in form are allowed)
 - c. be written in Times New Roman font, size 12
 - d. have a title, written in bold
 - e. have your name and the assignment number at the top right corner of the page
2. Poems must respond to the assignment given. No end-rhyming unless the prompt says it's OK.
3. Poems must be written in complete sentences (that is, if the line breaks were eliminated, the text would read coherently and be grammatically correct).

Workshop Procedure: Email your poem to the class listserv as a.doc or .rtf attachment before class on the date that it is due. I will read every poem and randomly select half of them to be workshopped the following week. Each student's work will be workshopped five to eight times throughout the semester.

Please PRINT OUT all poems to be workshopped, read each carefully (at least two times), and mark up the copies with feedback. Prepare at least TWO POSITIVE and TWO CRITICAL comments for each poem, and be prepared to share them during workshop. Bring the copies to class on the day of workshop. At the end of class, you will return the poems to the poets who wrote them.

Close Reading Responses (10 @ 500 words each; 300 points total):

Close Readings break down poems so as to learn how they work. Close Readings should concentrate on the decisions the poet makes in her/his work. There's always more than one way to close-read a poem—poetry, intrinsically, is open to interpretation—but your findings are convincing only when they're backed up by concrete evidence. Close Readings should present a concise and concentrated analysis of the poem.

As you begin thinking about the way the poem's devices work together to produce effects on the reader, select a question, claim, or theory about the work that stands out as intriguing/thought-provoking. This issue should develop into your thesis, your Close Reading's central argument. Don't try to account for everything happening in a poem; narrow your focus down to a particular aspect (for example: violence, animal imagery, colors, diction, political allusions, disease, etc.).

Once you've stated your thesis, organize concrete evidence in a logical way so that your reader can understand, contextualize, and follow your argument. Fill in your argument with topic sentences, paraphrases, transitions, direct quotes, and summaries, as needed.

Some devices to consider for Close Readings:

Tone/voice/style:

What is the effect of the speaker's voice? Is the tone ironic, sardonic, mean, goofy, or difficult? What can the voice/tone tell us about the emotional world of the speaker?

Diction (word choice):

Why does the poet choose the words that he/she does? Are there words that have important connotations extending beyond their literal meanings? Does the diction reflect the speaker's tone?

Images:

What kinds of images are employed and how? Which senses are activated by the poem's imagery? Do the images work together to form a particular theme or motif, and how might this alter our interpretation of the poem?

Metaphors/similes :

Is the poem heavily metaphorical, or are images more literal? What comparisons are being made in the poem? Do the metaphors throughout the poem share a common theme or emotional tendency?

Sound/rhythm:

Does the poet use rhyme or other sonic techniques (alliteration, consonance, assonance, off-rhyme)? Does the sound of the words mimic the event/object/feeling being described? How is the sound contributing to the overall architecture of the work?

Line length/line breaks/word order:

On the page, how does the poet choose where to break lines? Are certain words emphasized by such line breaks? Is enjambment used in the poem and to what result?

Form:

Is the poem one of an accepted poetic form (sonnet, ode, sestina, epic, or elegy)? How are stanzas built? How many lines in each stanza, and why?

Verb forms:

Why does the poet choose the verb tense that he/she does? Is there a shift in tense at any point during the poem? If so, what is the effect produced?

Point of view (the speaker):

Who is the speaker (remember, the speaker is not the same as the poet herself/himself)? Does the poet use the first person (“I”) point of view, the second person (“you”), or the third person (“he/she”), and why?

Checklist for a Successful Close Reading

- *is proofread and revised
- *dives deep into the poems’ workings
- *focuses on a specific argument laid out in a thesis
- *does NOT simply give a summary of the work
- *employs concrete evidence—actual quotes and paraphrases—from the poem
- *discusses specific poetic technique
- *chooses depth of argument over breadth
- *provides enough context so that readers who are not intimately familiar with the poem can still follow the argument
- *is logically organized: an introduction, a conclusion, and reasonably divided paragraphs
- *cites quotations correctly
- *is grammatically and syntactically correct

Resources for Close Reading:

You’ll need a dictionary. I recommend The Oxford English Dictionary, available here (but make sure you’re logged on to the University’s system to access UF’s subscription!):

- <http://www.oed.com/>

Other resources include:

- * Ch. 1 of your To Read a Poem textbook
- This overview of close reading, with an example, from the Purdue OWL website:
<http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/751/01/>
- For context, you can find short biographies of many poets here:
 - <http://www.poetryfoundation.org/>
 - <http://www.poets.org/>

Final Portfolio (100 points):

Near the end of the term, you will revise at least five poems, taking into account my feedback and the feedback of your peers, as well as your own reexamination of each poem. The portfolio will be graded as a whole based on the quality of your revisions and the scope of your improvement throughout the semester.

Introduction to Final Portfolio (1000 words; 100 points):

For this assignment, you will reflect on your writing processes for the poems you’ve written throughout the term, you will discuss your revision tactics, and you will examine your own growth as a poet. You will also look at your poems as a collected body of work and examine any themes or questions that arise from them being collected together.

Participation (100 points):

Because this is a discussion- and workshop-based class, you are expected to be an active participant. This does NOT mean interrupting or being otherwise disrespectful to your peers.

Class discussion:

To receive full participation points, you should speak up at least once during each discussion. Students are responsible for completing all assigned readings each week. If I feel that students are not consistently prepared for class, I will give unannounced reading quizzes. Quizzes and graded in-class activities cannot be made up in the case of absence.

Workshops:

To receive full participation points, you should be a vocal, but respectful, participant in workshops. Students are responsible for reading the poems to be workshopped and for writing comments on them. Be specific with your comments, written and verbal, since greater detail will help the poet in revision.

Grading Scale

Grading Criteria

All larger assignments will be graded on a point scale, with letter grade equivalents. However, the poem drafts will initially be graded on a check/check-plus/check-minus scale. At the end of the semester, you will receive an overall grade for all poem drafts (out of 400 points). The overall grade is based on how well the poems respond to the prompts, how well they show an understanding of poetic concepts learned in class, overall level of effort, and improvement over the course of the semester. If you'd like to discuss your progress at any point, please feel free to email me so that we can set up a time to meet. Refer to the table on the next page for an explanation of letter grades.

Grade	Essays	Poems
A	An “A” paper responds to the assignment prompt in full. It presents an original, specific, and clearly worded argument supported by sufficient evidence from authoritative sources. Writing style is engaging, clear, and concise, and the paper employs a logical organization. It is free from mechanical or formatting errors and cites sources using the proper citation format.	An “A” poem responds to the assignment prompt in full. It uses vivid and carefully considered language and follows an original and cohesive vision. It employs poetic techniques discussed in class to a constructive purpose. Its sentences make complete grammatical sense and it is free from mechanical or formatting errors.
B	A “B” paper responds to the assignment prompt. It presents an original argument, but ideas may need further development or clearer articulation. The argument is supported by evidence. Writing style is generally clear and organization is logical, but there is room for improvement. There are very few mechanical errors and sources are cited properly.	A “B” poem responds to the assignment prompt. It presents a unique vision, but ideas may need further development. It uses poetic techniques but could be doing more to bring craft and drama to the poem. Language used is effective but may need some refining. There are very few mechanical errors.
C	A “C” paper may not fully respond to the prompt. Argument is overly broad or in need of clarification and development. Some evidence is used to support the argument, but claims are not sufficiently defended. Writing style lacks clarity and organization is problematic. Several mechanical errors or incorrect citations.	A “C” poem may not fully respond to the prompt. Vision is disjointed or overly clichéd. Poetic techniques are not used to their fullest potential. Language seems hastily chosen or unoriginal. There are several mechanical errors.

Writing style and organization are unclear. Many mechanical errors or incorrect citations.	A “D” poem does not fully respond to the assignment prompt. Poem seems hastily written with little overall vision to hold it together, unoriginal word choices, and many mechanical errors. Poetic techniques are missing or misused.

Course Policies and Procedures

Attendance and Tardiness

You are allowed two unexcused absences. A third absence will lower your grade by an entire letter. If you accumulate four unexcused absences, you will fail the course.

An absence will count as excused only if the student is participating in a university-sponsored event (athletics, theater, music, field trip, religious holidays) and provides documentation from an appropriate authority. Absences related to university-sponsored events must be discussed with me PRIOR to the date that will be missed.

I take roll at the beginning of class. If you enter class after roll has been called, you are late. Every two instances of tardiness will count as one absence. If you are more than 15 minutes late, you will be marked as absent for the day. Tardiness will also lower your participation grade.

PLEASE NOTE: If you are absent, it is still your responsibility to make yourself aware of all due dates and to submit the next week's assignments on time.

Classroom Etiquette

No phones or laptops are allowed in class unless we are discussing a reading that has been made available online through PDF format. Keep all electronic (or other) distractions in your bag. If I notice you using a cell phone or laptop during class without permission, I will mark you absent for the day without a warning.

Submission Requirements

Assignments must be submitted by the correct time on the day assigned and in the specified format. Late assignments will be docked by one-half the earned letter grade for each day they are late. Minor assignments such as homework will not be accepted late.

Mode of Submission: All Close Reading Responses and the final Portfolio will be submitted to me as paper copies, as will the first two poems you write. Poems being submitted for workshop will be e-mailed to the class listserv before class begins on the day they are due. Final drafts should be polished and presented in a professional manner. All papers and poems must be in 12-point Times New Roman font. Poems should be single-spaced and include your name, the date, and the assignment number. Essays must be double-spaced with 1-inch margins. Please use correct MLA formatting and citation style for critical writing.

Paper Maintenance Responsibilities

Students are responsible for maintaining duplicate copies of all work submitted in this course and retaining all returned, graded work until the semester is over. Should the need arise for a resubmission of papers or a review of graded papers, it is the student's responsibility to have and to make available this material.

Conferences

I encourage you to make an appointment with me if you have questions about your progress in the course, work we are doing, or if you have any other concerns. Conferences on assignments can improve the quality of your final draft.

Extensions

Each student may take one “free pass” during the semester. This means that you can turn in one poem late, no questions asked, as long as you get it to me within one week. Please contact me via email BEFORE the assignment is due to request your free pass.

Extra Credit Opportunities

Students may earn extra credit by attending the MFA@FLA reading series—readings of original poetry and fiction by students in UF's Masters in Fine Arts in Creative Writing program. These readings take place certain Thursdays at 8 p.m. at Volta Coffee downtown and last approximately 1 hour. I will make the schedule available to you. Each reading attended is worth 10 points of extra credit.

Grade Appeals

In 1000- and 2000-level courses, students may appeal a final grade by filling out a form available from Carla Blount, Program Assistant. Grade appeals may result in a higher, unchanged, or lower final grade.
