Course Description and Goals

This course is an introduction to thinking and writing about the cinema by means of film theory and history. As an introduction to film analysis, ENG 2300 provides students with a working knowledge of film vocabulary (e.g., the distinction between a “long take” and a “long shot”). However, as opposed to the “film appreciation” model, this course develops these analytic tools in the context of film history and film theory. Having completed this course, a student should have a sense of both film history’s general outline and some of film theory’s most important issues. However, the main purpose of this class is to develop more engaged analysis of a given film’s style and structure, and how to write about that elegantly.

Weekly goals:
Week 1: Introduce basic film terminology; introduce mise-en-scene and editing; practice analyzing film.
Week 2: Introduce cinematography; analyze narrative structure in three films from the 1930s.
Week 3: Introduce concepts of genre and authorship in classic Hollywood narrative cinema; analyze classic Hollywood style.
Week 4: Introduce formalist alternatives to classic Hollywood, including experimental film and the cinematic style of Yasujiro Ozu.
Week 5: Introduce postwar European art cinema; analyze spatial relations and temporal organization in art cinema; discuss art cinema’s demands on viewers.
Week 6: Introduce basic issues in ideological analysis of film; discuss relationship between ideological issues, pleasure, and narrative form in art film.

Assignment Descriptions

Reading Quizzes: I will periodically begin the day with a quiz to ensure that you did the reading. These quizzes are randomly distributed throughout the semester, so always be prepared!

Viewing Journal: after each film screening period, you will write a 300 word response to the film(s) in which you can discuss your reactions, raise questions, or put forth an interpretive argument. Please note that these responses are not summaries of the film’s plot. They are due before class the day following a screening period and will be uploaded to Canvas.

Essay 1: Sequence Analysis: this essay will test your ability to analyze a small filmic sequence from one of the films we viewed in class, paying particular attention to mise-en-scene, editing, and cinematography. A full assignment sheet will be available on Canvas.

Essay 2: Short Analysis: in this essay you will analyze a film in its entirety, paying particular attention to its overall narrative structure and how it achieves its effects through filmic language. It is not a plot summary: you will not be discussing what happens, but how it happens. A full assignment sheet will be available on Canvas.

Essay 3: Researched Analysis: this essay is a short researched argument about a film topic of your choice. You will make a single, focused argument backed up by research and your own close analysis of the film(s) you are writing about. I will also ask you to submit a short proposal for your research topic. A full assignment sheet will be available on Canvas.
Schedule (Tentative)

Note: you will be expected to have read all the texts listed on each day prior to that day’s discussion.

Classroom Policies

Absence Policy: Attendance is required. If a student misses more than five class periods during the semester, they will fail the entire course. This includes both regular class periods as well as film screenings. I exempt from this policy only those absences involving university-sponsored events, such as athletics and band, and religious holidays and certified illness (see (https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx)). Absences related to university-sponsored events should be discussed with the instructor prior to the date that will be missed.

Please Note: if students are absent, it is their responsibility to make themselves aware of all due dates. If absent due to a scheduled event, students are still responsible for turning assignments in on time.

Tardiness: If students enters class after roll has been called, they are late, which disrupts the entire class. Two instances of tardiness count as one absence.

Cell phone and laptop policy: Students must turn cell phones to silent before coming to class. Cell phones may never be used in class. Each time a student’s cell phone rings or each time that a student texts during class, 1% will be deducted from that student’s final grade. Students may use laptops, e-readers, or tablets in class only to view texts under discussion. A student who surfs the internet or uses Facebook, etc. in class will lose 1% from the final grade for each occurrence. This policy includes all film screenings.

Sexual Assault and Harassment: Title IX makes it clear that violence and harassment based on sex and gender are civil rights offenses subject to the same kinds of accountability and the same kinds of support applied to offenses against other protected categories such as race, national origin, etc. If you or someone you know has been harassed or assaulted, you can find the appropriate resources here:

These evaluations are conducted online at https://evaluations.ufl.edu. Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester, but students will be given specific times when they are open. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at https://evaluations.ufl.edu.

Classroom Behavior: I will not tolerate any rude, coarse, or offensive remarks based upon race, gender, ability, or sexual identity, either in class discussion or in written assignments. In addition, please keep in mind that students come from diverse cultural, economic, and ethnic backgrounds. Many of the texts we will discuss and write about engage controversial topics and opinions. Diversified student backgrounds combined with provocative texts require that you demonstrate respect for ideas that may differ from your own. Disrespectful behavior will result in dismissal, and accordingly absence, from the class.
