Screenings: M p9-11 (4:05-7:0 5)

Course Description:

ENG 2300 will introduce you to film vocabulary and film analysis. You will develop your analytic skills in the context of film history and film theory, give close consideration to a selection of classic and modern films, and study concepts and debates that have proved central to subsequent ways of thinking about the cinema.

In addition to developing your analytic skills, ENG 2300 will challenge you as a writer. Throughout the semester, you will develop and employ techniques of observational and persuasive writing as you work to compose compelling, evocative analyses of the films you view.

Course Texts:

Corrigan, Timothy, and Patricia White. The Film Experience 3rd Edition. Boston: Bedford/St. Martin's, 2012.

Hacker, Diana; Stephen A. Bernhardt and Nancy Sommers. Writer's Help (with 2 year online access], Boston: Bedford/St Martin's, 2012.

Course Goals:

As a student of ENG 2300, you will strive to achieve the following goals:

- To learn film vocabulary and to use it correctly in written descriptions of films
- To understand the importance of basic elements of filmmaking, especially editing, mise-en-scene and cinematography.
- To articulate how a given film creates meaning through use of its expressive elements
- To deeply engage with a specific film
- To compose an elegant analysis of both an individual scene and a whole film

Integrity Statement:

Successful students develop by reflecting on their own work and on the work of others; they analyze and carefully evaluate the arguments and rhetoric of their peers and of published authors. This form of active academic reflection is only possible if students approach the class and its texts with sincerity, respect, and intellectual curiosity. As a student of this course, you will embrace these ideals each day in class by candidly sharing your thoughts and respectfully engaging with the thoughts of others.

A note regarding our texts:

Students will approach course texts with maturity. Films may contain explicit sexual themes, nudity, graphic language, extreme violence (including violence towards animals), or controversial political and religious topics. We will acknowledge that these elements attract and deflect our attention, and we will consider the achieved effects in a given film.

Attendance:

ENG 2300 is a participation-oriented course, which means that it is vital for you to contribute your thoughts in each class session. Please keep the following attendance policies in mind:

If you miss more than six meetings during the semester, you will fail the entire course. Only those absences involving religious holidays or university-sponsored events, such as athletics or band, are exempt from this policy. Absences for family emergencies or short-term illnesses will count toward your six allowed absences. Illnesses severe enough to require absences over 3 days will be excused with proper documentation

Each absence beyond three will lower your final grade by  $V_2$  letter. (NOTE: For attendance purposes, each screening counts as two class meetings).

3 times late to class equals 1 absence. Please do not arrive late to class. The door may be locked if we are screening a film or film clip.

Absence does not excuse late material. When absent from class it remains your responsibility to make yourself aware of all due dates and to hand assignments in on time. In-class activities and quizzes may not be made-up unless the absence is exempt

Screening Policy:

Insightful film analysis requires active viewing. You should be actively engaged during our screening periods. Talking is discouraged, and use of cell-phones is forbidden. Cell phone use may result in being marked absent for the period.

You are expected to maintain a viewing notebook, and to take notes during each screening. Your notes will be your launching point and guide for class discussion, response essays, and analyses.
