Course description and objectives:

This course introduces students to the intersection of film studies and queer theory. It traces the history of visual encoding of non-normative sexual desire in dominant genres, such as the activist documentary and the melodrama, and discusses key concepts, such as camp and trash. The course investigates points of contact between exploitation film and the avantgarde by discussing works by directors, such as Su Friedrich, John Waters, Andy Warhol, and Edward D. Wood. Based on the question whether the depiction of gay and lesbian desire has produced a distinct queer film aesthetic, we will investigate the paradox of socially imposed invisibility and the visibility inherent in the medium film. Because the course highlights marginal subjectivities and their cinematic expression, it includes films that can be experienced as strange and weird or traumatic and painful. Participants in this class need to be able to approach such films with an open mind that allows them to engage with the texts productively, scholarly, and theoretically.

"Queer Cinema" provides an overview of the history of gay and lesbian cinema with its key turning points and periods; it introduces students to the theoretical questions that queer cinema produces for film studies; and, it highlights the emergence of queer studies in relationship to film culture. Films might include Different from the Others (1919), Girls in Uniform (1931), Glen or Glenda (1953), Suddenly, Last Summer (1959), The Children's Hour (1961), Therese and Isabelle (1968), Desert Hearts (1985), Torch Song Trilogy (1986), Looking for Langston (1989), Paris is Burning (1990), Swoon (1992), The Watermelon Woman (1996), Ma Vie En Rose (1997) and XXY(2007). We will read queer theory and film studies by Judith Butler, Richard Dyer, Susan Sontag, and Patricia White, among others. The course will be reading and viewing-intensive. In addition, writing assignments throughout the semester serve as building blocks for a final research paper.

Required Reading:

Course Pack: Available at Xerographic Copy Center, 927 NW 13th Street [R]

Book available at University Bookstore, Reitz Union:

Barbara Mennel. Queer Cinema: Vampires, Schoolgirls and Gay Cowboys. New York: Wallflower, 2012.

All readings are also on reserve and accessible through the website of Library West, as well as on sakai. It is your responsibility to have readings in front of you for discussion, either by printing them out or by using an iPad or laptop, and to be able to navigate the text.

Attendance:

Attendance in class and at the screenings is mandatory. You need to provide written documentation for absences resulting from sickness, personal crises, natural catastrophes, and deaths among family and friends. Unexcused absences lower your attendance grade. More than two unexcused absences will affect your final course grade by lowering it one increment (e.g. from A to A-, A- to B+ etc.) for each unexcused absence. Three instances of tardiness without formal excuses equal one absence. If you are absent, it is your responsibility to make up the missed materials, which includes viewing the films you have missed and getting notes from class discussion. I take attendance at every class meeting. Should you be late, it is your responsibility to make sure that I marked you as present by coming up to me at the end of class.

Participation:

Academic conversation is one of the skills that you should acquire in college and thus need to practice. Quality of oral participation reflects coherence of arguments, precision of analysis, level of attention to details, complexity of questions that drive academic inquiry, application of the vocabulary that pertains to the particular discipline, and the consistency and level of preparedness and engagement with the course material, including viewings and readings. Your grade for participation will reflect the quality and quantity of your contributions to the class, including the productive engagement with your classmates.

Reading Quizzes:

These are simple, short, unannounced but regular quizzes at the beginning of class that pose a limited number of straightforward content questions about the readings and the films. These will begin after the end of drop/add on Thursday, August 29. No make-up quizzes are given. If you have a formal excuse (e.g. doctor's note), the points for the missing quiz is averaged from your other quizzes. If you miss a quiz because you are late or absent without a written excuse, you receive zero points for the missing quiz.

Assignments:

Assignments are due at the beginning of class on the due dates. No late assignments are will be accepted, except with a doctor's note or equivalent document. Should you have to miss an assignment, communicate with me prior to the deadline. This applies to all assignments, but is particularly important for the final research paper. Should you experience extenuating circumstances beyond your control that prevent you from handing in your final paper on time, you need to contact me before the deadline with official documentation and negotiate an appropriate and realistic date for submission. If you are unable to complete the course in time for me to grade your final paper and calculate your final grade before final grades are due, we need to sign a contract for an incomplete, which includes documentation of your extenuating circumstances (most likely a doctor's note). This procedure follows university regulations. I am unable to give an Incomplete without completing this paperwork, for which you have to be present in person.

Short Paper:

The short paper focuses on an analysis of a film or a sequence from a feature-length film that we have either viewed in class or that is related to the course topic. Please focus on the close reading of the formal elements of the film in your analysis, but feel free to include or apply secondary literature we have read in class. Length: 4-5 pages (min. 1000 words) with 12pt font and 1 inch margins, including page numbers. No outside research is necessary. Due: Week 8, Thursday, October 10, 2013.

Topic Proposal and Bibliography:

You need to submit a proposal for the final paper, which should be the length of one paragraph. The proposal does not receive a letter grade. However, points will be deducted for late proposals, for missing sections, grammatical and stylistic errors, for formatting issues (e.g. hand-written material) and for mistakes in the bibliography (incomplete entries or inconsistencies). You will receive 0 points for not handing in a proposal. After one week, I will not accept late proposals.

The proposal has to include the following:

- a tentative title
- an explanation and description of your research interest and your research questions,
- the film(s) that you will discuss in your final paper,
- a bibliography of at least five titles of scholarly texts (books or articles) that relate to your topic but are not listed on the syllabus. You may not include websites or blogs as your sources.

The proposal has to be typed in 12pt font with 1 inch margins and include your name. Incorrect references, incorrect citation, and incomplete proposals will result in a deduction of points.

Due: Week 11, Thursday, October 31, 2013.

Annotated Bibliography:

The annotated bibliography includes two bibliographic entries (most likely from your topic proposal), each with a short summary and your evaluation of the texts' productivity for your final paper, and one paragraph on how these two texts relate to one scholarly text that we have read in class.

You may change your topic from the topic proposal to this assignment. If you change your topic, include one paragraph on your new topic. It is common that our topics change once we engage in research. Minimum: 500 words (1-2 pages)

The proposal has to be typed in 12pt font with 1 inch margins and include your name and page numbers. Annotated bibliographies are typically written in single space.

Due: Week 13, Thursday, November 14, 2013.

This assignment does not receive a letter grade but points will be deducted for the following: incorrect or incomplete bibliographic entries; incorrect or incomplete assignment; missing, random, incorrect or inappropriate titles*; sloppy writing; the impression that you have not actually read the material.

*For example, sometimes articles include words in their title but the article itself does not discuss the topic at all. Students who list such an article reveal that they have done a title search but that they have not actually read the article.

Final Paper:

The final paper is 8-9 pages long (min. 2000 words) on a research topic related to Queer Cinema. It should go beyond class discussion. However, you can focus your paper on films that we have seen in class or films that we have not seen in class. The final paper has to integrate at least two outside source of scholarly texts that we did not read in class and at least one academic text from class. You may integrate the material from your short paper into your final paper for a final paper of 12-14 pages (3000 words). I offer this as an opportunity to create writing samples for application to graduate schools in English or Film Studies. Please keep in mind that the complete paper needs to be coherent, which might imply that you have to rewrite sections of the midterm, for example, the introduction and conclusion. If you are interested in that option, you might want to discuss it with me prior to deciding on the topic of your midterm. The final paper has to be typed in 12pt font with 1 inch margins, include your name and page numbers.

Due: Monday, December 9, 2013 by 5:00. You may drop off your paper in my office or email it to me. Until you receive a confirmation that I have received your email and have been able to print out your paper, it is your responsibility to remain accessible and keep a copy of your paper. If you drop off a paper in my mailbox, please follow up with a confirmation email that I received your paper.

Plagiarism and Cheating:

All students are required to abide by the Student Honor Code. For more information about academic honesty, including definitions of plagiarism and unauthorized collaboration, see: <http://www.dsoufl.edu/sccr/honorcodes/honorcode.php>.

Plagiarism is the intentional or unintentional unacknowledged use of the intellectual works of others, including published and unpublished material from the web or friends. I prosecute plagiarism and cheating to the fullest extent possible at UF, the minimum of which is that you will fail this class and receive the letter grade F for this course. Per university policy, all allegations of academic misconduct are required to be reported to Student Conduct and Conflict Resolution (SCCR) in the Dean of Students Office.

Graded and Submitted Materials:

Students are responsible for maintaining duplicate copies of all work submitted in this course and retaining all returned work until they have received their final grades on ISIS. Should the need for a review of the grade arise, it is the student's responsibility to have and make available all returned assignments and quizzes.

Special Dispensations:

If you have a learning disability, hardship, or other dispensation approved by the Office of Student Affairs, please meet with me to discuss your requirements as early in the term as possible. The Disability Resource Center in the Dean of Students Office provides students and faculty with information and support regarding accommodation for students with disabilities in the classroom. For more information, see:

<http://www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/>

Technology Use in Class:

All cell phones must be absolutely silent and invisible during the actual class periods (off the desk and not in your pockets). Since some students now read on their laptops and ipads, I allow the use of laptops and ipads in the classroom. Should I see that you use your electronic device at any point during class time for any activity not related to the course materials or note-taking on this course, your use of individual electronic media will be banned for the rest of the semester. Should you use your phone to text during class, you will count as absent that day.

Statement on Harassment:

UF provides an educational and working environment for its students, faculty, and staff that is free from sexual, racial, ethnic, gender, and religious discrimination and sexual harassment. For more about UF policies regarding harassment, see:

<http://www.dso.ufl.edu/studentguide/studentconductcodephp#s4041>

A Note on Religious Holidays:

Students who belong to a religious community are not required to attend classes on their religious holidays. Please let me know in advance.
