Queer Life/Writing AML4282, 16A9 / Queer Autobiography WST 4930,1F51 Tuesdays 3:00-4:55pm in Turlington Hall 1315, Thursdays 4:05-4:55pm in Turlington Hall 2322 Kim Emery, kimemery@ufl.edu, office hours Tuesdays/Thursdays 5-6pm & by appt., TUR 4111

This course explores autobiography, memoir, and autobiographical fiction produced by LGBTQ writers in the post-Stonewall United States. Because queer self-fashioning has, historically, very often occurred within hostile and/or uncomprehending environments, we will seek to contextualize our readings not only in relation to the literary tradition of life writing, but also in connection to the theoretical and historical frameworks of specifically queer self-invention and representation.

Course policies

Papers and homework are due no later than the beginning of the class period on the designated date; late submissions will not be accepted without documentation of an acceptable (typically medical) excuse. For your own protection, you are required to make and keep an extra copy of work submitted. Please also retain notes and drafts for the formal papers; you may be required to submit these upon request. All work noted on the syllabus or assigned in class is required unless changes are explicitly stipulated. Any changes to the syllabus will be announced; it is the student's responsibility to keep informed of any such changes. Students are responsible for all material covered and work assigned during any absence, excused or unexcused. Any form of cheating, including plagiarism, will result in a failing grade in the course and an official report filed with the university. It is expected that you will be familiar with the University's policies on scholastic dishonesty. If you have any questions or concerns, please inform me ASAP. Attendance is expected and will be recorded; absences will adversely affect your grade. Because the readings assigned in this class discuss the diverse real-life experiences of various LGBTQ-identified individuals, they often address sensitive topics such as sex, violence, sexual violence, racism, and racist violence. Students who have concerns about engaging such material are strongly encouraged to consult with the professor before committing to the course.
