The seminar will critically survey James Baldwin's literary work and political essays, as well as review selected bi that explore Baldwin's life in the United States, France, and Turkey. Baldwin was engaged in the socio-political we surrounded and sometimes consumed his artistic and moral energies that brought him to become active in the U.S.	Civil Rights movement and international concern the construction of nation, race, and sexuality. One critic wrote of Balc	dwin in these words: "Following publication of Notes of a Native Son and The Fire Next Time, James Baldwin's literary sta	ır approached its peak during the turbulent 1960s. His burgeoning role as celebrity, prophet, and leader heaped an un	sustainable amount of pressure and responsibility onto his slight frame in an American landscape that doubly punished Baldwi	in for being both black and gay, and he often turned to Turkey for sanctuary." This seminar reveals the artistry, compassion, an	d moral commitment of one of America's greatest writers.
